HOMESCHOOL HAPPENINGS

And just like that, February is on the horizon! We welcome it with excitement as we continue to work hard to make the most of our learning days together. Most of the kids' extra-curricular activities have resumed already, and we are working towards switching to learning in Spanish twice per week. A blog post about this is in the works!

I am happy to share that I recently joined a Charlotte Mason book club. We will be studying Mrs. Mason's volumes and chatting about her philosophy in education and her approach to it- I find this fascinating, and I cannot wait to dig in.

FROM OUR SHOP

Nature is an essential part of childhood. With this in mind, we are committed to offering a rich collection of nature-inspired guides specially designed for families who want to take their Spanish learning outdoors!

They all have a gentle invitation to explore the outdoors with family and friends, and we cover different topics like forest animals, bees, butterflies, evergreen trees, and more!

We are super excited about The World Around Me Mega Bundle with our newest product:

Our World Bilingual Flashcards.

Our fun learning cards go through the Spanish alphabet. With each letter, we have included a word related to preserving our world, along with a coordinated illustration. You will also find a definition for the term and an activity suggestion to enjoy as a family. All of these components will help your children memorize concepts.

These cards will teach your kids vocabulary in Spanish and set a moral example of how to care for our planet better.

Learning cards are another one of our family's favorite ways to incorporate the language regularly at our house.

I found these plastic boxes with five Plastic storage cases inside, and I can't get enough of them! Can you imagine the possibilities? Legos, stickers, ribbons, tapes, recipes, and more! I, however, plan to use them to store all learning material that I gather from the bundles: flashcards, paper puzzles, puppets, and more.
